Anti-drug week continues with 'Community Day'

"Drug Free Week," the first major anti-drug effort by the Task Force Against Drug Abuse, will continue Friday with "Community Day" programs, planned to allow community groups the opportunity to participate in the campaign.

Fifteen local organizations will take part in Friday's activities — hosting rallies, seminars and speeches aimed at educating Atlantans about drug abuse and the problems of illegal drugs.

Organizations participating include the Metro Atlanta Boys and Girls Clubs, Straight Inc., Ridgeview Hospital, M.A.C.A.D., Meadowbrook Forest Community Club, English Colony Tenants Association and the Pomona Park, Laurens Drive, Adams Park, Winsor Drive, Kings Forest, Heritage Valley and East Atlanta community associations.

In addition, the Ridgeview Recovery Centers in Marietta, Douglasville and Fayetteville will host free community education programs at 7 p.m. Friday.

The task force, which was formed earlier this year, is a coalition of Atlanta's civic and business leaders, media representatives, educators, members of the clergy and law enforcement officials.
